ABSTRACT

Existing 3D motion generators face a trade-off between convenient but coarse text-based control and precise but manually specified pose guidance. Moreover, diffusion-based methods further incur substantial iterative sampling costs.

The next line exists so a selection can end inside a later word.